

If She Had Not Married.
The lover of euphonious female names must look back with regret to the eighteenth century with its fragrant memories of Belinda, Arabella and Amabel. Yet in Spain euphony is still preserved. Could you have a more beautiful name than Juana Maria de los Dolores de Leon? It is one of the ironies of history that the owner of these charming vocables was fated to be known in after life as Lady Smith, and to bestow that much less attractive and euphonious title upon a town in South Africa.

ORIGINAL PLAN TO BE FOLLOWED CLOSELY

President Beggs of Milwaukee Traction Company Plans Line to Janesville.

That Janesville is ultimately to become the center of one of the wheels of the immense electric system with which President John I. Beggs intends to cover the southern section of the state, is again evidenced in the giving forth of his plans at the opening of the Waterford division of the line. This opening was held Friday, and was attended by a large crowd from all over this section of the state. President Beggs on his special car gave the following idea of his comprehensive plan, which coincides with that previously given out by him:

"The opening today of the line to Waterford was one more link to our comprehensive system of continuous lines. This system I have had in mind for about ten years, and now we are beginning to see the idea as it is evolved, year by year.

"This system, starting from the Public Service building in Milwaukee, traverses the state, and will eventually form direct and connecting lines as follows: On the west the line to Watertown, via Waukegan, is the beginning of the line, north and north-west, and this will be extended to Madison, with a spur also from Watertown south to Johnson Creek, St. Atkinson and thence to Janesville and Beloit. From Milwaukee south and southeast will be the Milwaukee and Troy line, the new line from St. Mar-tin to Waterford and Burlington.

Thence to Lyons, Springfield, Lake Geneva, Williams Bay and Delavan, where it will connect with a line to be extended from East Troy, via Faxon, Elkhorn and other points, to Delavan. The Madison line will also extend eventually to Delavan, via Beloit, where it will connect with the East Troy and Burlington lines, thus forming an elaborate loop system covering that section of the state."

It will thus be seen that ultimately Delavan will be the center for lines running from the city to Beloit, to Lake Geneva via Delavan Lake, and to Elkhorn, East Troy and Milwaukee, with necessarily the power house and car barns for this section.

Nothing untoward happening to change the plans which are being slowly worked out, a section at a time, Delavan will, in the course of a very few years, have the best of railroad facilities and opportunity for immense expansion of its business and industrial life.

Salt a Poison.

Salt in measure is wholesome, but in surfeit is a deadly poison. Rascally amateur drovers, to make hogs weigh more, sometimes heavily salt and water them just before selling; this often kills the hogs before they reach the scales.

VANDERBILT WINS COACHING MARATHON.

ALFRED G. VANDERBILT DRIVING HIS VENTURE GRAYS.

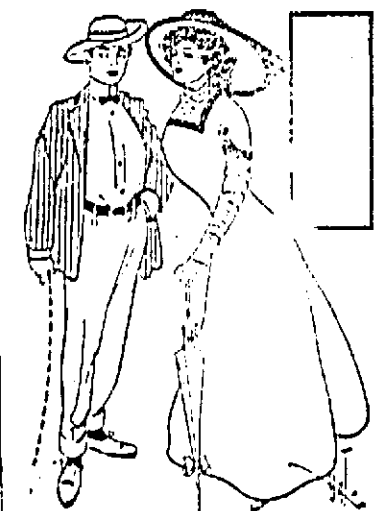

London, Eng.—While America felt keenly her disappointment in not winning the great derby, still the success of Alfred G. Vanderbilt in the coaching marathon has again brought praise on the American horse. The coaching marathon is a new departure and was the big event of the international horse show. Twenty-four hands participated in the race, from Hampton court to the show and the Vanderbilt grays, which have gained a world-wide reputation, made the remarkable time of 11 minutes and 5 seconds. Another coach driven by Judge Moore of Chicago accomplished the distance in a little less time, but in coming fast he badly used up his horses and lost points thereby, for the race was decided not on time alone, but on the general appearance of the team after they had finished.

The contest aroused tremendous interest and so large was the crowd at the start that the officials had great difficulty in arranging the coaches in their allotted order and so far as the drivers were concerned the utmost dexterity was required to maneuver the teams to the starting point. Vanderbilt drove the team himself. The prize was a $500 gold cup, presented by Joseph Widener of Philadelphia.

The Greatest Opportunity to Become Rich Offered Today

The Canadian Pacific Ry. Offers It's Lands to Settlers

LET THE CROPS PAY FOR THE LAND

These Sunny Southern Alberta Lands are so wonderfully fertile that any man, even a city bred man with no practical experience in farming, can reap returns that are impossible in any other vocation, or in any other district.

"Back to the Land"

is the cry of today, where air is pure, where you can rear a healthy family, where you will be independent and where you can become wealthy.

Starting a Farm

In Sunny Southern Alberta is the title of a free booklet issued by the Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., which you can have for the asking. This book goes into the all-important question of the capital required to start a farm in Southern Alberta. It is of interest also to the practical farmer, as it gives him an idea of local values compared with those in his own community. It also shows the advantage that a farm in the Bow River Valley offers to the city man as a place to raise his family and acquire wealth, giving him at the same time just the class of information that he requires. No question that the city resident might not be answered.

The crops of a single year have paid for an entire farm. We have three million acres which we are selling on the "Crop Payment Plan"—No crop—no pay.

We want home builders to settle this land so as to make traffic for the company.

This is an opportunity—you don't have to be poor all your life—investigate this offer, decide what to do after you have investigated. The company will break the land for you and plant it and cultivate the crops. All you have to do is to harvest the first crop and then settle here in Sunny Southern Alberta.

AIRSHIP WRECKED IN SECOND FLIGHT

WRIGHT MACHINE IS BADLY DAMAGED AFTER MAKING THRILLING FLIGHTS.

IT COLLIDES WITH A TREE

Motor Stops Over Spot Where Serious Accident Occurred Last September and Craft Drops—Orville Escapes Injury—Delay for Tests.

Washington, July 2.—The Wright aeroplane was so badly damaged in landing last evening after Orville had made many thrilling trips around the Fort Myer drill grounds that further tests will be impossible before next week. The aviator, who was permanently crippled in the same place last autumn, escaped this time without injury.

The machine was on its way around the Fort Myer drill grounds for the ninth time in its second flight when the motor stopped, 60 feet above the earth and exactly in the same place where the propeller blade broke last September which resulted in the fatal accident that terminated the trials at that time. In gliding to the earth the machine struck a tree and was swerved around with such force that the skids were broken and the right wing badly ripped. Mr. Wright was not hurt.

Most Successful of Flights.

The two flights were the most successful that Orville Wright has made at Fort Myer since his return to complete the government trials. On the first attempt he flew about the field 12 times in 11 minutes and 50 seconds, and on the second trial he had gone around 8½ times when the flight was terminated by a mishap. He had been in the air for a little more than eight minutes. During both flights Mr. Wright went higher and faster than in the trials of the two previous days. It was estimated that his speed was about 37 miles an hour on an average, although the machine probably exceeded 40 miles when flying with the light breeze blowing from the south.

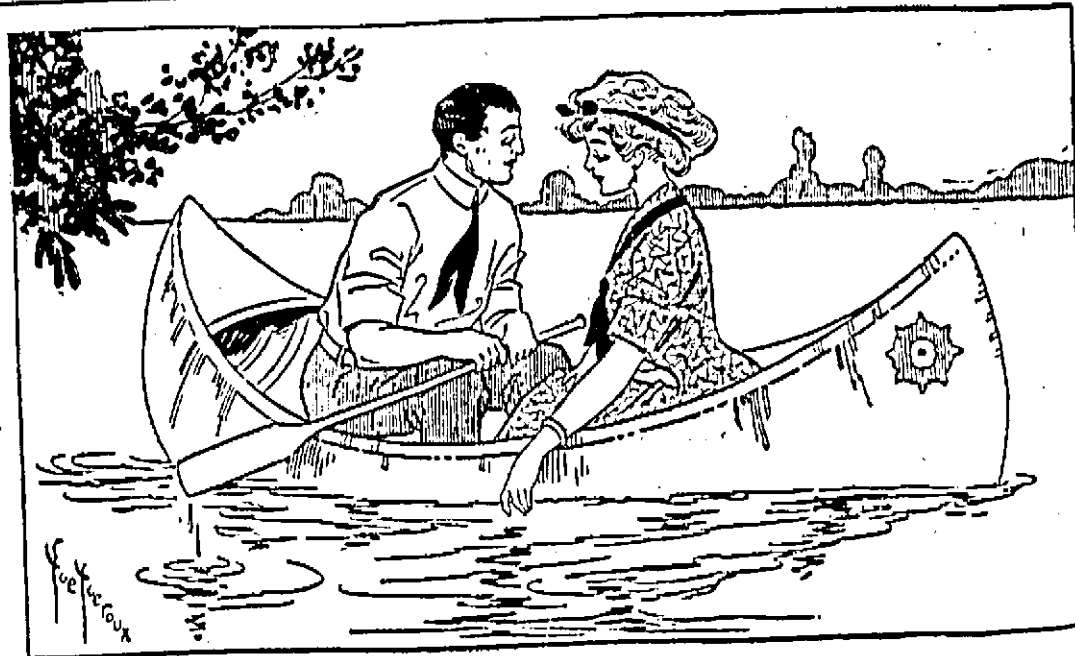

The glide, which covered a distance of perhaps 300 feet, was beautiful to behold, but there were few in the crowd of a thousand or more spectators who did not fear, for a moment, that they were about to witness a repetition of last year's accident. Orville and Wilbur inspected the machine closely to see what caused the motor to stop. They did not announce the result of their investigation, but said that the aeroplane would not be ready for air flight before Tuesday at the earliest, because it would be necessary to send to their Dayton shop for cloth with which to repair the damage to the planes.

Wright Explains Accident.

"My motor stopped just as I was over the aeroplane shed," said Orville Wright, after the machine had been returned to the shed. "When you are over bushes and trees you can't see their height and it was due to a miscalculation on my part that the wing hit the tree and swung the machine around, causing it to land sideways on the skids. If it hadn't been for the tree I would have landed safely. It was too bad the accident had happened, because the machine was going fine. It was making better speed than Thursday and more than the machine that I used last year. I should judge the machine was going over forty miles an hour at certain times."

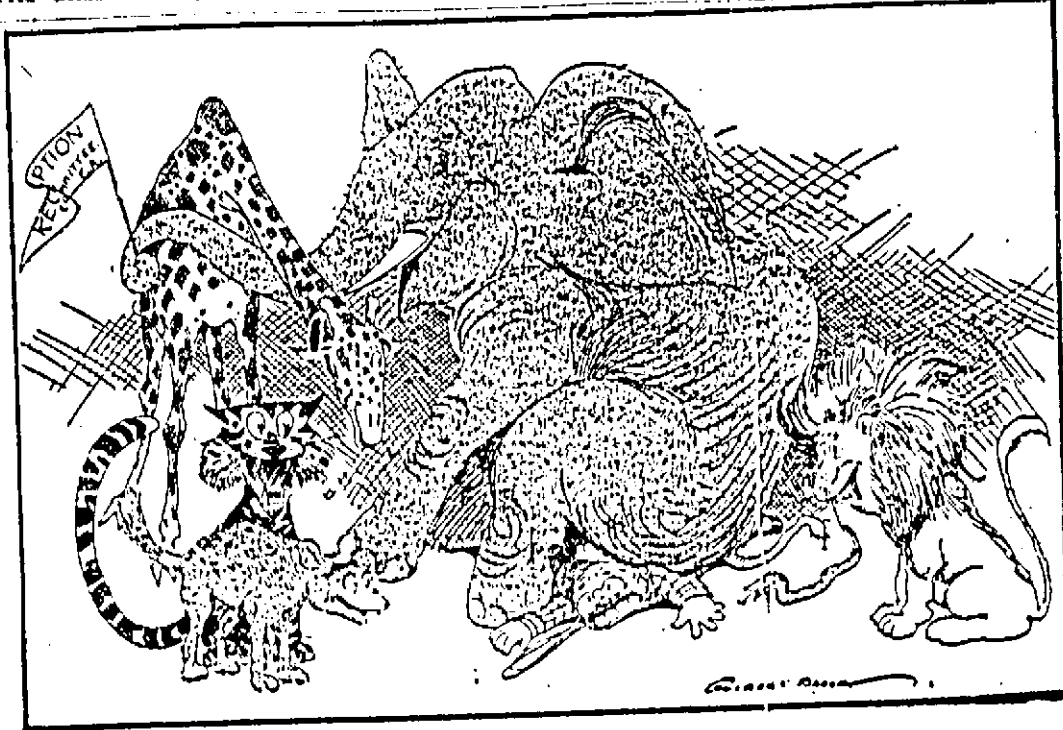

The motor on the aeroplane had been missing explosions for some time before it finally stopped. Otherwise the machine had acted much better than on its previous tests.

Who started things?

Peculiar Chinese Taste.
Chinamen have a preference for the eggs of the goose or duck. These they place with aromatic herbs in staked lime for a period of some weeks. Under the influence of time the yolk liquefies and takes a dark green color. The white coagulates and becomes green. The product of the eggs, which has a strong odor, the Chinese eat as a side dish and it is said to have the taste of lobster.

His Mistake.
The vendor of luncheon, who had just been thrown out of a large office building, wept bitterly as he looked at his torn clothes and broken wares. "Who did this?" inquired the friendly cop. "I'll pinch 'em, if you say the word." "No, it was my fault," said the victim, gathering up the remains of a plaster luncheon. "I insisted on trying to sell a bust of Noah Webster to a meeting of simplified spellers."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
The up-to-date business man is constantly breaking up old-time systems which have been handed down from father to son for many generations. The progressive man pays very little attention to what was done in the past. He knows that the world is now every day, that it requires new treatment. He faces the sun of progress, he looks toward the light, he holds his mind open. He does not care how many people have done the work before, or in what way they have done it, or how many superstitions enslave the thing he is working upon, he does his work in his own way. The present state of the world's progress is the result of the constant breaking away from the past, the elimination of worn out methods.

"England not long since sold thirty-one million warships, which cost fifteen million dollars, for less than five per cent of what it cost to build them. Those ships had not been in commission a great many years, but such has been the progress in ship-building that they are already out of date.

"Some of the most up-to-date machinery today will, within five years, be consigned to the junk shop by progressive manufacturers.

"A great thrashing, almost human, Hoe printing press today throws off completed papers faster than one person can count them, and great rolls of paper are reeled off almost as fast as a horse can trot. The largest skyscraper in New York would not hold enough such printing presses as were used fifty years ago to turn out the same amount of work in equal time.

"Everywhere the new is crowding out the old.

"Life in the city has become so intense that it is necessary to break loose from it every now and then, to get in closer touch with nature, and drink power from the fountain head; to get so close to Mother Earth that she can whisper her secrets in our ears.

"It is a great thing to keep one's self growing in this age of specialists. The man who continues to work in a rut, who confines himself to one special line, betrays every year a lessening tendency to reach out into new fields, to expand, to grow outside of his little line of endeavor. People who take no vacation lose the rhythm of life. Their days are all monotonous work.

"Play is just as important to symmetrical development, to a well-balanced life, as work. A vacation helps to balance our powers, to give us a more symmetrical development. It keeps us from becoming one-sided. It improves our judgment."

This is a little sermonette by Orson Sweet Marston in the July number of Success Magazine, and so true to life that it is worth thinking about. Every community furnishes object lessons of men who refused to keep up with the times, and as a result the procession moved on leaving them stranded by the way.

Janesville established one of the first cotton factories in the west, with modern buildings and equipment, and sufficient capital to swing a successful business, but its life was of brief duration because the management failed to recognize the importance of keeping up with the times.

Old machinery, which should have been consigned to the scrap pile years before, was run at a loss and when it became necessary to invest $10,000 in new equipment in a single year the enterprise was abandoned.

Two or three little bakeries supplied the city and surrounding country, not so many years ago, while today two modern up-to-date plants, doing a business of close to a quarter million dollars, operate in the same territory.

There are merchants in Janesville doing less business than they did 20 years ago, or barely holding their own. By neglecting to keep abreast of the times they have permitted competition to come in and capture the trade.

And so, all along the line, men run out and die of slow rot because they fail to catch the progressive inspiration of the age in which they live.
The swing of the old-fashioned cradle, and the rhythm of the stave, as the operator applied the blade in the shade of the apple tree, presented an ideal picture of simple country life, but the ideal was rudely displaced, when the man with an iron drove into the field with the reaper and demonstrated its utility.

An old gentleman, long since dead, came to Wisconsin many years ago by stage coach from Buffalo, and he used to talk about it as an ideal journey. He said sometimes he wondered if the world wouldn't be better off if it was back in the days of stage coaches and cradles.

The quiet life appealed to him, for the noise and bustle was confusing, and the pace of life too swift for comfort or pleasure. This was before the days of automobiles and wireless telegraphy, and the telephone was not yet discovered.

Back in the 80's a man by the name of Mergenthaler conceived the idea that a machine could be made to save the slow process of setting and distributing type by hand.

His friends laughed at him and his fellow craftsmen discouraged him, but the idea possessed the man, and by slow degrees he worked it out.

When the first completed machine was installed and a line of type perfectly cast, produced, the Mergenthaler or Linotype was no longer an experiment, but the inventor was a mental and physical wreck.

But the life sacrificed to working out of an idea had performed its mission, and in less than a decade the printing industry was revolutionized.

The machine, almost human in action, performs the work of six hand compositors with a single operator turning out a better product, and saving the tedious work of distribution.

This invention, like many other labor-saving devices, was fought by organized labor, and so successfully that the government printing office at Washington was not permitted to install the machines until a few years ago, but like many other revolutions, which have occurred in the industrial world, the demand for labor increased rather than diminished and good printers never lacked employment and were never in greater demand than today.

The old characters in Bible times may have lived a thousand years. If they did it was a monotonous existence and the waking up after a sleep of a century would not be startling.

The man today, who comes back to life after the lapse of a decade, finds it difficult to adjust himself to new conditions, and the man who lives out allotted time is older in experience than Methuselah.

The progress of the world in industrial and commercial life is a flattering compliment to the men of ideas who toil unflinchingly to make the pathway easier for humanity.

This spirit of enterprise reaches out to other fields and demolishes temples which were considered sacred half a century ago.

In the bright light of a better theology superstition vanishes and men are coming to believe that the best service to God consists not in long prayers, but in making the way smoother for some careworn traveler.

Possession and not profession is the creed demanded, and waves of moral reform sweep over the land like the coming tide.

A higher standard of morality has transformed business methods, while temperance and sobriety is encouraged on every hand.

The man who drinks today may be a good fellow but he soon finds himself out of a job. The man who handles trust funds recognizes the sacredness of the trust as never before.

There are some things which do not change with the lapse of time. They are like God's free air and sunshine, and like the pure cold water, which gurgles in the spring on the hillside, perfect from the beginning.

The love of a mother dates back to the first home, and the flight of time down through the centuries has not tarnished it.

The sacredness of the home has stood the test of motherless woman and rattle brains men, in all ages, and will survive the affinity epidemic just now being exploited.

The friendships of life are of the old-fashioned type and evolution will never disturb them, while old-time honesty continues to be above par, as it has always been.

Blessed with friends, grounded in a good home, and well grounded in the common virtues of life, the young man of today enjoys a rich inheritance, and can afford to strike out boldly for the front assured of success if he keeps pace with the procession.

ADJUSTMENT.
One of the secrets of successful living is the art of adjusting oneself to changing conditions.
Make up your mind once for all that the world will not adapt itself to you; you must adapt yourself to the world.
Cultivate adaptability.
In nature everything fits—adjusts itself to surroundings. Animal, plant, star, universe—each must fit itself to environment.
Man alone tries to fight natural law and fails.
The North American Indians died this way. They would not conform to their surroundings. As a consequence the Indians are a disappearing race. Mount builders, cliff dwellers, foresters, plains people—all disappeared or are disappearing.
Also—
New England tried to raise Indian corn on its rocky soil and failed. Semi-arid western Kansas made a like experiment and failed. When western Kansas finally adjusted itself and began to raise wheat she began to feed the world.
It was so in "dry farming."
When the pioneers of eastern Colorado, Wyoming, eastern Oregon and Idaho failed in their early experiments it was because they did not know how to conserve the scanty rainfall by proper culture. By adapting and adjusting methods they have made the desert to blossom as the rose.
It is all a matter of adjustment—finding what you can do and doing it.
This is particularly true of men.
Grant failed in business, but won dentless fame in war. Goldsmith "wrote like an angel and talked like poor Poll."
The round man gets into the square hole, and vice versa, because of inability to adapt himself.
Unadjusted life is a failure because it is a misfit.
Adaptability to circumstances marks successful men. They do not try to alter the unalterable. They realize how small they are and how big is the universe. They see they must join the logical procession of affairs if they are to get anywhere.
You can only develop yourself as you subscribe to things as they are.
He is the fortunate man who can be at the right place and say the right word and do the right thing at the right time.
Adjustment of his life to surroundings is the secret of that ability.
No man can get on in this world if he is a misfit.

Handy Clotheshanger
Clamp That Fits Over Coat Bar Holds Trousers or Skirt.
A useful little contrivance that will save tailor's bills by keeping garments in shape is the garment-hanger designed by a New York man. This consists in nothing more than a simple wire attachment to the ordinary curved wooden bar on which coats have been hung from time immemorial. The attachment consists of a wire bent in such shape that it hangs over the bar and forms two long clamping jaws below. The device is resilient and the jaws grip the bottoms of trousers or the tops of skirts firmly. A single suit of clothes, either man's or woman's, can thus be hung on the hanger, the trousers or skirt depending upon the clamp and the coat draped over the bar. If the trousers are carefully folded into their original creases, the legs are inserted in the spring jaws, they will be kept in such good shape overnight that the owner will find little if any necessity for having them pressed anew.

Children who have been watching the circus parades this season with bating eyes and have seen the lions and tigers peering their cages may themselves bring a cage with a restless lion in it if their parents are so fortuitously situated as to be able to buy them one. On this track is mounted a lion or some other one of

It is wise to save the pennies when the pennies come your way, for you're more than apt to need them when arrives the rainy day; and when famine comes a penny whistling with the cross-homes on her vest, then the fellow with the bundle has the edge on all the rest. I admire the man who's saying, if he doesn't save too hard, if he doesn't think a dollar bigger than the cornhouse yard; and I like to see him sitting down the riches that he's struck, if he always has a quarter for the guy that's out of luck. When the winter comes upon us, yelling like a baseball fan, then it's nice to have some bundle in an old tomato can; when there's sickness in the wigwam, and we have to call the doc, then it's nice to have a package hidden in the eight-day clock; when old age, the hoary rascal, comes a-battling in at last, then it's nice to have some rubles that you cornered in the past; and the man who saves the pennies is a dandy and a duck—if he always has a quarter for the guy that's out of luck.

Model Hospital.
Philadelphia has recently opened a new hospital for contagious diseases, which Dr. Neff, the director of public health, declares is the world's model institution of its kind. The new institution has cost about $1,500,000 so far, and will probably cost another million if buildings now planned are added. It has been suggested, and Mayor Heyburn has given his consent, that the old posthouse be saturated with oil, and set fire to on July 5, and allowed to be eaten out by the flames until nothing remains but the stone and brick walls. "That would be a fitting climax," said the mayor, and I approve of it.

SAVES THE FERTILIZER
Hand Machine for Dropping It When and Where Needed.
Fertilizer is expensive. By the old method of distributing it there was usually enough wasted to represent a pretty penny. Then came along a Virginia man and invented the hand fertilizer dropper. This device consists of an old-shape bucket, running to a point at the bottom and having a small opening there, through which the contents filters. A hinged valve, operated by a rod that leads to the handle of the bucket, controls the flow. The top of the rod is connected to a crossbar, which runs under the handle of the bucket. This bar is in close reach, and when resting on the top of the bucket the valve is open. To close the valve the operator merely extends a finger and lifts the bar, thus shutting off the flow of the fertilizer. The valve flares at the bottom, spreading the fertilizer in a broad, thin stream. For small farms, gardens and lawns this device is of great convenience, and is a money-saver.

Aluminum Dress Trimmings.
The rumor has been much verified that aluminum would be asked to play a conspicuous part in the season's trimming glorifications. Quite one of the most beautiful expressions is found in the mingling of gold and aluminum on a groundwork of fine black net, while in another case a delightfully shadowy impression is afforded by a flat darning of coarse silver net with pale gold.—Queen

NOTHING LACKING FOR CELEBRATION

CHAIRMEN OF DIFFERENT COMMITTEES REPORT EVERYTHING READY.

RUSH WORK AT LAST MINUTE

Many of the Stunts Being Completed in Record Breaking Time To Be Ready For the Parade.

At the meeting of the chairman of the various committees for Monday's celebration held last evening the report went around that all was ready for the big day Monday. As Chairman after Chairman made his report of the completion of his portion of the preliminary work the opinion was expressed that Monday will see the biggest celebration ever held in Janesville.

Chairman Eugene Fish announced that the morning parade will form on Dodge street with the Imperial band and the head of the procession on Marion street. It will proceed to the Five Points and thence down Milwaukee street to Main, turned up North Main to Prospect avenue and up Prospect avenue to Bluff street, thence to East Milwaukee, down to Main, down South Main to the Court House Park where the parade will disperse.

Carrriages will be at the City Hall at nine for the Mayor and city officers and members of the council and the Imperial Band will lead the parade with the Beloit, Evansville, Ft. Atkinson and Albion bands in the different sections. All who are planning to take part should notify Chairman Fish of the fact at once.

The program in the park will follow the morning parade and will be held in the Court House park. Hon. John M. Whitehead will be the presiding officer and the prayer will be offered by Reverend Christy. Miss Anna Cutler will read the Declaration of Independence and Hon. Wallace Ingalls of Racine will be the caller of the day.

The afternoon parade will form in Spring Brook. All wagons and mounted exhibits must be here before two o'clock. The parade starts promptly at this hour. The police-train portions of the parade will drop in front of South Third street. One of the features of former parades, that of "barkers" with each exhibit, it is hoped, will be cured for by the exhibitors this year as it adds to the interest of the attraction if it is explained in "leather" tones.

Colonel McKee promises new and unique features for this year's parade that will surpass anything before attempted. The parade will be longer than ever before and will contain many really clever circus stunts.

In order to make it a success, though, Mr. McKee is most anxious for four or five good mounted men to aid in forming the procession and avoid trouble during the parade itself. He would like volunteers for this work, mounted, to be at the grounds shortly after eleven o'clock.

Word was received this morning that James Kuhlman, a former resident and an old time circus man who now makes his home in Fond du Lac, will be here Monday with Molly Kuhlman, a famous equestrian horse and the Kuhlman Sisters, also prominent in circus life as tight rope artists to take part in the parade.

There will also be a wireless telegraph exhibit which will be well worth seeing and arrangements have been made to have dispatches received from a considerable distance several times during the day. There will be several tandem outfits, with riders standing and the usual chariots which will have four horses.

The pony brigade, composed of the young people owning ponies in the city promises to be one of the most interesting in the whole procession. The handsome cup donated as a prize for the best exhibit in this section by D. K. Jeffers, as an exhibition in the Merchants' and Mechanics' bank and is well worth watching.

During the progress of the procession fireworks will be shot off along the line of march and the police will watch for any offenders in this respect the orders being most strict. This order applies to both the morning and afternoon parades.

During the afternoon the free street entertainments will be given on raised stands in different sections of the business streets of the city and one of the bands will give a concert in the Court House park, and others on some of the raised stands. There are street performances are added to the best that have ever been secured for a celebration here and will be eagerly watched for.

In the evening comes the lighting of the street arches and the automobile parade. Chairman Edson has issued a call for all automobile owners to be on Milwaukee avenue where the cars will be decorated and run free furnished to burn during the line of march. An automobile band wagon seating eighteen persons will head the procession and it will be a beautiful sight.

Concerts will be given during the evening in the park and on the streets and dances will be held in different halls and at the golf clubs. The women's refreshment room at the Merchants' and Mechanics' bank will be open all day with women attendants and arrangements are being made for careful police protection on the streets by competent men all day.

Post Office Hours For Monday, July 5th.

Office will be opened from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 1:30 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. Money order department open from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m. only. Carriers will make their usual morning delivery, and be at their windows from 1:30 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

COMES TO END OF LONG BUT PLEASURABLE TRIP

Miss Margaret E. Koehler Has Arrived in Seattle and Will Attend Exposition.

Word was received today to the effect that Miss Margaret E. Koehler has arrived at Seattle, Wash., thus far having a very pleasant trip. Leaving Janesville the 21st of June in company with Mr. and Mrs. E. Pfeiffer and family, who accompanied her as far as Omaha, Neb., a short delay at Council Bluffs, Ia., was caused by a very severe storm. However, she arrived at Seattle the 25th at midnight, where she was met by relatives. After a three weeks' visit at the fair she will continue her visit to Bellingham, Wash.; thence to Wrangell, Alaska; by water. Here she expects to make an extended visit to her aunt, Mrs. P. C. McCormick, formerly known in Janesville as Miss Frances Koehler.

Miss Koehler's many friends join in wishing her a pleasant journey and a safe return.

Remarkable Collection of Photographs of Janesville in the Early Days Attracts Attention.

One of the most interesting window displays arranged for the Fourth is to be seen at the Smith pharmacy where a collection of rare old photographs of Janesville in the early days has been placed on exhibition. The Bowser City parades on July 4, 1867, and July 4, 1868, the Hyatt House, the old Monterey bridge, the scene of the wreck in Millmore's cut, the ruins of the notorious Matt Hiron place, a log cabin at Barkers Corner which was built 60 years ago, the Helmsstreet drugstore corner in pioneer days, and numerous other rare old pictures are to be seen interspersed with numerous clippings of the Gazette's "Forty Years Ago" column. DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN Food Specialist.

OVEREATING.

We eat too much. That is universally admitted. We have a land of plenty; meal time comes, in most families, three times a day, and we are expected to eat, sick or well. Aside from the influence of the habit of eating "three square meals," the chief cause of overeating is our American habit of hurry. We are amused, sometimes, at the slow-going habits of other peoples, but deliberation is not without its advantages, and conspicuously so in eating. Thorough mastication is necessary to get the full nutritive value of any food, even milk (an infant does not bolt its food), aside from the fact that every ounce of energy saved for the stomach is gained for health, good feeling and working capacity. To reduce the amount of food by half and double the time spent in eating it, would show a gain in almost every case. To lose time in this respect is to gain it. Try it.

WORD TO THE WISE ANENT CELEBRATION

Lock Homes and Guard Valuables—Promptly Report Any Disorder to the Police Station.

Chief of Police Appleby and his force will do all in their power to protect people and property on Monday next but they cannot be everywhere at one time and must have the cooperation of the public. Many visitors will be in the city and some of them are likely to be of the unweaveable variety. Therefore, valuables should not be left in the homes or the doors and windows of the same unlocked during the parades. Thefts should be promptly reported to the police station where a man will be detailed to attend telephone calls throughout the day and evening. The loss or discovery of lost children should be promptly reported at the same office. Teams should be kept off the streets, as much as possible. Parties using revolvers in the celebration will be arrested and the weapons confiscated. All citizens are urged to discontinue and use their influence to prevent the setting off of firecrackers during the parades.

Where Sickness Exists

Those taking part in the afternoon parade are requested to make as little noise as possible while passing the intersection of Wheeler and South Main streets. Mrs. Charles Ormsbee and Miss Ida Lester, cashier at the Hotel Valley & Co. store, who reside in that vicinity, are both very ill and the slightest sound disturbs them. Miss Lester is threatened with pneumonia.

LIVELY SCRAMBLE FOR THE UNITED STATES EMBASSY AT PARIS.

At left, Ambassador Henry White, the present occupant of the United States embassy at Paris. Upper right, Robert Bacon, who has been mentioned for the place. Below, Spencer
Eddy, who is also in the running.

Paris.—Among the many diplomatic shakings which President Taft has determined upon, the one involving the French embassy is perhaps the most important. The Ambassador Henry White would like to remain in an open secret. Mr. White receded his appointment under President Roosevelt two years ago, after having been in the diplomatic service for a number of years.

Owing to a difference of opinion between Ambassador White and President Taft some years ago the president does not look kindly upon the presence of White as United States representative in France.

General William F. Draper, who is well known in diplomatic circles, has also a decided grudge against the ambassador in France, for White ousted Draper from the Italian embassy when he received that appointment, and the two have been at war ever since.
Mr. Draper is himself a candidate for the place, feeling that the greatest revenge he could possibly secure would be to succeed Ambassador White in Paris. Draper is at present on the field, having come here directly from the United States, after a conference with President Taft, at which time it is stated he received some encouragement from the president. He has many backers who think he was wrongly treated by Roosevelt in connection with the Italian post.

The unofficial announcement which was made some time ago that Robert Bacon, of J. P. Morgan's banking firm, might receive the appointment was only a straw to show the way the wind was blowing. President

Taft, it is thought, wished to know just how much of a commotion the announcement would create. Strange to say, the announcement created only a ripple. Bacon still holds a strong hand, however, and may yet land the coveted place.

The British Crown.

The present crown of Great Britain was constructed in 1808, with jewels taken from old crowns and others furnished by command of the queen. It contains four large pear-shaped pearls,
273 small pearls, 147 table diamonds,
1,273 rose diamonds, 1,303 brilliant di-monds, 119 rubies, 11 emeralds and 17 sapphires.

How Women May Keep Well.

An authority upon all matters connected with physical training says that a woman who wishes to keep well and in good condition should sleep nine hours of the 24, take cold water baths, exercise for five minutes each day with light dumbbells, drink a cup of hot liquid before breakfast, spend half an hour every day in outdoor exercise, make the best of bad bargains and, above all, always keep her temper.

The Gentleman.

There are men and women who pride themselves upon their gruffness, and though they may possess virtue,
their manners make them intolerable.
The finest gentleman that ever breathed was the model man of Nusareth. And if Christianity has no higher recommendation, here's statement in "Guesses of Truth," "the Christian is God Almighty's gentleman," that alone makes it an invaluable element in society.

Overland Model "31"

$1400.00

Equipment:—Two large headlights, generator, two side oil lamps, tail lamp, full set tools and horn
With heavy magneto.

Strong—Speedy—Roomy—Stylish

There have been many low priced cars, but never one so big, strong, speedy and good looking as this one. In the Overland "31" you get the best automobile value ever offered for less than $1500. In this car you find that something called class—that something which other cars at or near this price have lacked.

Most low priced cars have been too small. In the Overland "31" you get a big car. Strong wheels, the large radiator, big hood, staunch, clean-made frame.

This is a big car. Other cars selling under $1500 have not been roomy. One felt cramped after riding in them. The Overland "31" has ample leg room. There is no car made, regardless of price, that affords more comfort to those who ride in it.

Designers of other cars selling around the price of the Overland "31" have not seemed to realize that it is easy to make a good looking car and it is to make another kind.

Here is a car that is good looking. It is big and easy looking. It has graceful and harmonious lines. Long sweep of fenders and frame.
There is no car with better lines. None from this standpoint more satisfying.

A man who can afford a half dozen cars will enjoy the Overland "31" as well as the man who can own but one.

Judged by every mechanical and engineering standard this car is thoroughly up-to-date without embodying any experimental features. It is a car that looks and acts like the more expensive. It is big, roomy, stylish, satisfying.

THE FIRECRACKER FIEND'S FOURTH

BIG VICTORY FOR TAFT'S MEASURE

SENATE BY VOTE OF 60 TO 11
PASSES CORPORATION TAX.

EIGHT REPUBLICANS OPPOSE

Aldrich Rushes Question to a Vote
After the Income Supporters Are Defeated—Three Democrats Against the President's Plan.

Washington, July 3.—The first big victory for the Taft policies came last evening when the corporation tax amendment to the tariff bill, suggested by the president and drawn by his attorney general, was passed by the senate following a day of spirited debate and the defeat of the income tax supporters.

After much tribulation the senate reached a vote on the proposition shortly before adjourning at seven o'clock last evening and the amendment was agreed to by the large vote of 60 to 11. With all modifying amendments disposed of many Democrats voted with most of the Republicans for the amendment. Only three Democrats voted against the provision on the final vote but some refrained from voting at all.

Test Income Tax Vote.
The test vote was on the substitution of the corporation tax amendment for the income tax provision and on that vote 45 senators cast their ballots in the affirmative and 21 in the negative. On this ballot all the Democratic votes were cast in favor of the income tax, which also received the support of insurgent Republicans.

The income tax question disposed of, the senate today entered upon the administrative features of the tariff bill, taking up the maximum and minimum rate provision.

The reaching of a vote came as somewhat of a surprise to a large majority of the senators, but not to Senator Aldrich and his intimate advisors. Senator Aldrich himself had been confident from the time of his arrival in the senate early in the day, after a brief vacation, that he would succeed in getting a vote before adjournment. The result shows that while the situation seemed extremely critical for a time the chairman of the finance committee did not count without a thorough understanding of the situation. He therefore kept his lieutenants busy in holding the supporters in the chamber and at no time during the day was the senate without a quorum.

Debate Becomes Animated.
The debate was animated. Senators Hayburn, Hughes, Cummins, Newlands, Rayner, Brandegee, Root and Aldrich discussing all phases of the income tax question.

Senator Frazier, who has been a supporter of the income tax amendment and an opponent of the corporation tax, was absent from the chamber on account of illness. Desiring that he should be present when the vote was taken, Senator Bailey took the floor and announced his determination to hold it until Senator Frazier could make his appearance. Senator Frazier soon came in and thereupon the Texas senator yielded and the voting began.

The first vote was upon the motion to substitute the corporation tax amendment for the income tax amendment and this prevailed by a vote of 45 to 21.

Immediately following, Senator Lodge withdrew his amendment, and a vote was taken on a motion to substitute the corporation tax amendment for the income tax amendment offered jointly by Senators Bailey and Cummins. The result was an exact counterpart of the vote on the previous roll call.

Tobacco Coupons Doomed.
Decision to recommend the abolition of prize coupons in tobacco and snuff packages and to increase on most of the provisions of the tobacco schedule of the administrative portion of the tariff bill were reached at a long session of the Republican members of a subcommittee of the senate finance committee.

DIES BY SUITOR'S PISTOL.
Sister of Chicagoan Ends Life in Courthouse at Albia, Ia.

Ottumwa, Ia., July 3.—Miss Emily Koster, bookkeeper, a sister of W. T. Koster of Chicago, committed suicide by shooting herself in the heart in the courthouse restroom at Albia, where she had gone with her sweetheart, Clarence W. Ditz, assistant engineer of Ottumwa.

Miss Koster used a revolver which Ditz had given her to carry. The girl's mother believes her act was the culmination of a series of petty love quarrels with Ditz.

$500,000 in Jewels Stolen.
London, July 3.—The robbery of jewels valued at $500,000 from a recent street restaurant has been reported to Scotland Yard by a traveler named F. Goldschmidt, of Paris.

The loot, which was in a handbag, consists of ten pearl necklaces and a number of loose pearls and diamonds.

Dead Man May Be Baronet.
Yuma, Ariz., July 3.—Papers found among the effects of a stranger found dead at the Southern Pacific station indicate that the body is that of Sir Arthur Carl Stepany of London, an English baronet of large estates and a scientist of distinction.

Wearing Out.
It is not the revolutions that destroy machinery; it is the friction.

SHIPS COLLIDE; ONE SINKS.

Lake Schooner and Steamer in Crash at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., July 3.—The schooner John Schuette, of Toledo, was sunk last evening off the ship yard of the Great Lakes Engineering Works, in the lower Detroit river, in collision with the steamer Alfred Mitchell, of Duluth.

The schooner's crew escaped in their own yawlboat. The Schuette is in deep water with part of her spar showing. The cause of the collision has not been definitely ascertained, but Capt. Wilkinson, of the steamer Columbia, which was passing at the time, said it looked to him as though the schooner had to much astern and became unmanageable in the heavy squall, veering off her course and running into the steamer.

SNELL CASE ON TRIAL TUESDAY.

Celebrated and Spicy Will Suit on Court Docket.

Bloomington, Ill., July 3.—The third trial of the famous will case of the eccentric millionaire Col. Tom Snell, will come up next Tuesday in the Da Witt county circuit court. Principals in this noted litigation agreed that no more delay or postponement appeared possible and that Judge Philbrick, who heard the second trial, will call the case next Tuesday. It may require several days to get a jury.

Richard Snell, the disinherited son, is holding daily conferences with his counsel and there are rumors of some sensational disclosures which may be brought out.

It will be the last stand of the forces which seek to prove that Col. Snell was without testamentary capacity.

Bandits Rob Bank of $10,000.
Winipeg, Man., July 3.—The Bank of Nova Scotia at Rainy River, Ont., across the river from Warroad, Minn., was robbed of $10,000 by three armed men who held up Manager Templeton. The robbers escaped.

Attempts Suicide After Arrest.
San Antonio, Tex., July 3.—Ten minutes after he was married to a young woman of this city Earl Clark was arrested, charged with bigamy. Clark swallowed poison and his recovery is doubtful.

Drowned Man Identified.
Spring Valley, Ill., July 3.—The body of an unidentified man found floating in the Illinois river and buried in Potter's field was exhumed and proved to be that of Charles Butler, a resident of Peru, Ill.

TRAPS MAN WHO DUPED HER.
Illinois Girl Causes Allegation of Arrest in St. Louis.

Carroll, Ill., July 3.—After a thrilling chase across two states, Charles Carr, alleged bigamist, was arrested at St. Louis and brought back to this city. The arrest comes as a sequel to Carr's marriage to Miss Verna Wood in this city a month ago.

Representing himself as a noted actor, the man courted and won the girl with a promise of a place on the stage.

Within 12 hours after the marriage ceremony evidence came to the bride that Carr was a bigamist and then she confronted him with the evidence and he fled. He was traced to Indiana, then back to Illinois, and two days ago the girl received a letter from him in St. Louis, begging her to come to him. She set a trap for Carr, which resulted in his arrest.

NO SCANDAL IN THE MEAT INSPECTION SAYS BOARD

Committee After Probe at East St. Louis Brands Harms' Charges as False.

Washington, July 3.—Meat inspection at East St. Louis is not "rotten and a lie," says a report by the committee appointed by Secretary Wilson to probe the charges made by J. P. Harms, an inspector who gave up his position several weeks ago. The committee, which consisted of George P. McCabe, solicitor for the department of justice, and Dr. A. D. Melvin of the bureau of animal industry, after making its investigations behind closed doors, says the service in the packing plants is honest.

The report concludes as follows: "It is the belief of your committee that the men at the East St. Louis station, from the top to the bottom, are absolutely honest and competent; that they are discharging their duty to the service and to the public in a conscientious, high-minded, efficient way, and that no meat is passed from the East St. Louis station bearing the mark of federal inspection which is not in every respect fit for human food. The record shows that many of the employees at the East St. Louis station have worked overtime in their efforts to give an honest, efficient inspection."

"It is to be regretted that the word of a disgruntled, disaffected employee, irresponsible and unsatisfactory to no one, should have made the occasion of an attack upon a service which is honestly conducted and which means so much to the American consumer of meat food products, and to the cattle, sheep and hog raisers of the country, who are bound to suffer from any attack, no matter how unprovoked, which may be made upon the service."

As the result of the report Secretary Wilson has ordered the summary dismissal of meat inspectors Harms and Mitchell and Veterinary Inspector Michael.

REACHING THE SPOT.
It Can Be Done, So Scores of Janesville Citizens Say.

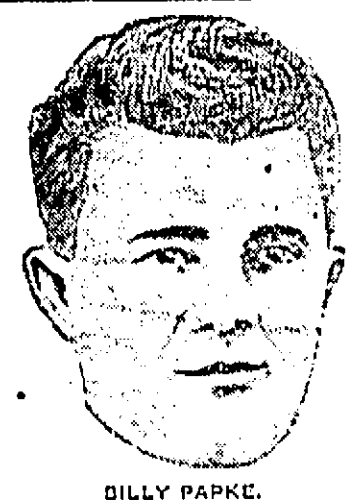

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, 58 Terrace St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I had been a sufferer from rheumatism and kidney trouble for ten or twelve years and during that time had some bad spells. I did not have much pain, but was constantly annoyed by a swelling of my joints. I could find nothing that would give me relief until about four years ago when I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a supply at the People's Drug Co. I soon felt better after beginning their use and my kidneys ran smooth. I have not been without Doan's Kidney Pills in the home since and I heartily recommend them to other kidney sufferers."

FIFTY-TWO TONS PER DAY

One Hundred and Ten Thousand Pounds is Loaded in Fourteen Cars in Fifteen Hours.

Fourteen carloads of sand and gravel a day, fifty tons, about 110,000 pounds, this is the output of the Janesville Cement Shingle Company from their pit and works near the southern end of McKee boulevard, from 4:30 to 7:30, the endless chain of shovels dig into the sides of the hill, and the shutes drop their contents into the waiting gondolas.

One hundred and ten thousand pounds is "some weight." Only a little bit more than a week is needed to bring the output up to one million pounds. With old style methods, it would take many times the present number of men employed to get the same ready for shipment. But at the south of town pit, there are no antiquated methods, neither is there anything done by hand that can be done as economically by machinery.

From the time the sand and gravel leaves the earth where it has lain for centuries, until it is dropped into the cars, no man's hand nor any instrument wielded by hand ever touches it. The endless chains of buckets and belts take care of all that. The machinery is simple but no one can say that it does not do the work effectively.

Three electric motors furnish the power. At the extreme end, the fore-front of battle, is a short, endless chain of straight blades which dig into the side of the pit, carry it thirty feet to a long belt which in turn dumps it upon another belt and this second belt carries the sand to the foot of a combined conveyor and bin.

This is a large wooden structure, capable of holding two carloads of sand and gravel with a large cylindrical screen at its summit. The belt drops the sand at the foot of the bin, an endless chain of small buckets, two hundred a minute, carry it thirty feet to the top where it is precipitated into an inclined steel screen, twelve feet long and three feet in diameter.

Here the sand is separated into three grades—fine sand, gravel and stones. Most of the sand goes to Milwaukee for use on the Grand Avenue viaduct, the largest structure of its kind in the state.

The larger stones are dumped into a pile for future use. According to J. K. Jensen, one of the firm, a stone crusher will be installed some time during the summer so that this waste material, which at present blocks operations somewhat, can be utilized as gravel.

One of the time-saving devices now in operation, is an automatic hammer which taps the screen and frees it from wet sand and small stones which become lodged in the interstices. Formerly it required the attention of a man to do this work.

Although the pit has been worked only a short time, a deep trench has already been cut in the hill. The distance from the crest of the hill to the bottom of the pit is now forty feet and the bottom has not yet been reached, not by a good many feet.

The area that will eventually be carved away is ten acres. A hole ten acres in extent and about fifty or sixty feet deep is somewhat of a hole but the fact that this large section of old mother earth's anatomy will be scooped out by little blades no more than ten inches square is still more surprising.

TOBACCO PLANTING
NEARLY COMPLETEDEdgerton Reporter Says That Almost All Of Plants Have Been Transferred To Fields.

The planting of the new crop, says the Edgerton Reporter, has progressed so nicely during the week that possibly 90 per cent of the intended acreage has been safely transferred to the fields by the close of June, so that a few days more will see the crop out within the usual planting limits. The soil was in such excellent condition to receive the young plants that the growth has hardly been checked in the transplanting and the early blight is reported to be looking splendid. So far, too, but little complaint is heard of the work of cut worms and growers generally feel very well pleased at the present outlook.

While the market for old leaf can hardly be said to show a very marked improvement, there is some business. Local pickers hope will lead to more extensive trading later on. Somewhere near 1000 cases of '06 and '07 goods have been moved by Janesville makers recently, and inquiry for samples and prices are much more frequent than for some time past.

The shipments out of storage reach 806 cases to all points from this market for the week. Since last report four car loads have been received.

HAS NINE MONTHS'
LEAVE OF ABSENCEJohn Enright, Who is Here for Visit With Parents, Tells About Status of Philippines.

John E. Enright, who was made an assistant director of the United States civil service bureau in recognition of his services to the territorial government in the Philippines, will visit until Tuesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Enright.

He has been granted a vacation of nine months—seven of them on full pay. Mr. Enright has been in the Philippine civil service since 1904 and prior to that time he was in the Klondike region in Alaska. Regarding the defense of the Philippines, he says that the battery at Corrigor Island, partially fortified with fifteen-inch guns, would be sufficient to prevent any foreign navy from getting into the harbor.

The naval base established thirty miles from Manila, and other protective measures, he thinks, are an ample guarantee against invasion. In the island capital some months ago he met John Hughes, formerly of Janesville, who is captain of a coast guard vessel, Mr. Enright departs for Washington on Tuesday to confer with the government authorities and will thereafter return to spend the balance of his vacation here.

the St. Nicholas Golf Club on Monday, July Fifth.

Owing to the fact that Monday is a holiday the regular Tuesday club day at the St. Nicholas Golf Club will be held on Monday and the club supper served at six, and the dance put off until nine, or after the automobile parade down town, and will then continue until one. Many who have friends visiting them have planned to take their meals at the club house during the day and the bus will be run to meet the cars, giving them easy access to the city and the yachts of the procession and other festivities. It is expected there will be some fireworks set off at the links in the evening and it will be by individuals who will club together for that purpose.

Mrs. Julia S. Lovejoy of this city was one of the parties who figured in the purchase of real estate and a business block in the downtown district of Rockford yesterday. The property has a frontage of 88 feet on North Wyman and North Main streets and $50,000 was the consideration involved in the transfer. Ten or one year's notice to vacate and it is said to be the intention of the new owners to erect a modern, six or eight-story business block with an arcade on the first floor.

HINTS FOR FIRST AID TO INJUREDSUGGESTIONS AS TO CARE OF IN-JURIES ON THE FOURTH AND FIFTH.

POSSIBILITIES MAY APPEAR

Careless Handling of Explosives
Lead To Many Serious Accidents.

While it is to be hoped that no serious accidents will occur in Janesville during the celebration of the National birthday this year yet there is always a possibility. The following suggestions as to care for injuries come under the head of First Aid to the injured and should be read carefully and remembered and may be useful in a case of emergency. It is always best to send for a physician even though the patient is promptly cared for by home remedies.

In dealing with burns, both superficial and severe, it is well to bear in mind that immediate exclusion of air from the wounded surface would greatly relieve the sufferer. Should the injury consist merely of a reddening of the skin the best method is to sprinkle it thickly with bicarbonate of soda, then bandage it with a wet cloth till the burning subsides.

As soon as relief is obtained the inflamed skin may be protected from the action of the sun by painting it with the white of an egg. The first layer of egg should be dried, apply a second and third.

When the injury is of a more serious nature and the cuticle has been blistered and destroyed, quickly give the wound a coating of vasoline or, better still, one of olive oil. Disinfecting agents are often the result of such injuries, but skillful attention will do a great deal to prevent this possibility.

Injuries from toy pistols that are such a joy to the small boy and a cause of anxiety to the mother are favorite mishaps of the day, and when the skin is broken from such an accident there is danger that powder may have entered the cut. The affected part should be cauterized as soon as possible. If one has a bottle of carbolic acid in the house this cauterizing is easily done by dipping a toothpick or match stick in the acid and applying the acid to the wound.

When carbolic acid is not at hand call the nearest doctor or send the child to a drug store.

If there is powder in the eyes of the enthusiastic celebrants draw the upper lid well down over the lower and hold the patient down his nose forcibly at the same time. If the trouble is some particle should get imbedded under the lower lid draw the lid down by the lashes and let the sufferer turn his eyeball toward the nose, then use a soft handkerchief to clear the eye, in wiping the eye always move toward the nose, as this is the direction taken by the natural secretions. Particles imbedded in the eyeball will have to be attended to by a surgeon, but great relief can be given by bandaging the eye before the physician arrives.

Shock very often follows a severe burn, and the sufferer, although not unconscious, lies in an apathetic state that is truly alarming. Failure to rally from this may indirectly cause death. To treat a patient suffering from shock, lower the head and administer stimulants until the heart action is revived. Heat should be applied to the pit of the stomach and the extremities. Brandy and water is the best stimulant where there is nausea, or hot tea, coffee or beef tea may be used if the patient can retain it.

When the clothing takes fire, pieces of mind will often prevent very serious mishaps. Much the worst thing a person can do is to run shrieking for help, and this is exactly what a mother should do. If a child is on fire, a mother should give a little talk to their youngsters before the great day on first aid and impress upon them the importance of keeping their mouths shut. If the clothing should become ignited, the greatest danger comes from blinding the flames. They should be told to lie down and roll about them whatever heavy woolen object happens to be near. Even a woolen coat is better than nothing. When covering a person whose clothes are aflame be sure to begin at the head to guard against the flames reaching the mouth.

One of the eligible said:

"What appeals to us more is the fact that the girls are looking for real home-makers. They seem agreed that wealth, talent or swell clothes are not absolutely necessary, but that they want clean men, who are not afraid to work. There are hundreds of strapping young men, full of vim and vigor in our forests, mines and railroad camps, grain fields, orchards and factories. Most of them have had school advantages and not a few are college men. The majority would marry the right kind of girls, the home girls and give them homes worth while."

While Mr. Goodall has no desire to figure as Cupid's messenger, he will, however forward the bachelors' letters to Rev. CHAPTER II.

AN EXTRAORDINARY DOCUMENT.

It appears that the Messrs. Skaggs and Wyckholme as their dual career drew to a close set about to learn what had become of their daughters. Investigation proved that Wyckholme's daughter had married a London artist named Ruthven. The Ruthvens in turn had one child, a daughter. Wyckholme's wife and his daughter died when this grandchild was eight or ten years old. By last report the grandchild was living with her father in London. She was a pretty young woman, with signs of maturity on her hands and a very clever mind on her shoulders.

Wyckholme held to his agreement with Skaggs by bequeathing his share of the property to him, but it was definitely set forth that at the death of his partner it was to go to Agnes Ruthven, the grandchild—with reservations.

Skaggs found that his daughter, who married Ruthven, the American, like who had died, and that she had left behind a son and heir. This son, Robert Brown, was in school when the joint will was designed, and he was to have Skaggs' fortune at the death of Wyckholme in case that worthy survived.

In order to keep the business and the property intact and under the personal control of one partnership the grandchild of Wyckholme was to marry the grandson of Skaggs within the year after the death of the surviving partner. The penalty to be imposed upon them if the conditions were not complied with, neither to be excusable for the defection of the other, lay in the provision that the whole industry and its accumulated fortune, including the land and they owned practically the entire island, were to go to the islanders. Wyckholme named Sir John Althorpe as one executor, and Skaggs selected Alfred Brown of Boston as the other.

As Wyckholme was the first to die, Skaggs became sole owner of the island and its treasures, and it was he who made the final will in accordance with the original plans.

The island of Japan, with its jewels and its ancient chateau, of modern construction, represented several million pounds sterling. Wyckholme's dream of erecting an exact replica of a famous old chateau found response in the equally whimsical Skaggs, who constantly bemoaned the fact that it was impossible to spend money. For five years after its completion the two old men, with an army of Arabian retainers and Nubian slaves, lived like oriental potentates in the huge structure on the highlands overlooking the sea.

Skaggs seldom went from one part of his home to another without a guide. It was so vast and so labyrinthine that he feared he might become lost forever. The dungeons below the chateau and the most with its bridges were the especial delight of these lonely, romantic old chaps. One of the builders of this rare place was now sleeping peacefully in the sarcophagus beneath the chapel; the other was lying dead and undiscovered in the very heart of his possessions.

The magnificent plans of the partners would have been a glorious tribute to romance had it not been for one fatal obstacle. The trouble was that young Miss Ruthven and young Mr. Brown did not know that their grandfathers lived, much less that they owned an island in the south seas. Therefore it is quite natural that they could not have known they were expected to marry each other.

Miss Ruthven, from motives peculiar to the head and not to the heart, set about to earn a title for herself. "Three "Consult an attorney," advised Mr. Brown promptly.

"I'll do it," shouted Bobby Brown, one time halfback on his college eleven.

"Break the will for me, Mr. Brown, and I'll give."

"I can't break it, Bobby. I'm its executor."

"Good Lord! Well, then, who is the best will breaker you know, please? Something has to be done right away."

"I'm afraid you don't grasp the situation. Now, if you were not married it would."

"I wouldn't give up my wife for all the islands in the universe. That's settled. You don't know how happy we are. She's the!"

"Yes, yes, I know," interrupted the wily Mr. Brown. "Don't tell me about it. Go and see Judge Garrett, over in the K. building. They say he expects to come back from the grave to break his own will."

"You are assuming that I intend to act under this ridiculous will."

"Certainly. It means about $50,000 to you at the end of the year, with nothing to do but to notify two persons of the terms in the will. If they're not deceased and married again at the end of the year you and Sir John simply turn everything over to the Malays, or whatever they are. I think it's easy sledding for you."

Young Mr. Brown hastened downtown in response to a message from the American executor and was told of the will which had been filed in England, the home land of the testator.

To say that this debonair, good looking young gentleman was flabbergasted would be putting it more than mildly.

"What shall I do—what can I do, Mr. Brown?" he gasped, bewildered.

"Ten minutes later an excited young man rushed into an office in the K. building."

"You will have to fight it jointly," said Judge Garrett after extracting the wheat from the chaff of Brown's remarks. "You can't take hers away from her, and she can't get yours. We must combine against the natives. Come back tomorrow at 2."

Promptly at 2 Brown appeared, eager eyed and nervous. He had left behind him at home a miserable young woman with red eyes and choking breath who bemoaned the cruel conviction that she stood between him and fortune.

"But, hang it all, dearest, I wouldn't marry that girl if I had the chance. I'd marry you all over again today if I could," he had cried out to her, but she wondered all afternoon if he really meant it. It never entered her head to wonder if Lady Deppingham was old or young, pretty or ugly, bright or dull. Judge Garrett had a copy of the will in his hand. He looked dubious, even dismayed.

"It's as sound as the rock of Gibraltar," he announced dolefully.

"You don't mean it?" gasped poor Bobby, mopping his fine Harvard brow, his six feet of manhood shrinking perceptibly as he looked about for a chair in which to collapse. "Can't it be smashed?"

"It might be an easy matter to prove either of these old gentlemen to have been insane, but the two of them together make it out of the question."

"Darned unreasonable!"

"What do you mean, sir?" indignantly.

"I mean—oh, you know what I mean—the conditions and all that. Why, the old chaps must have been trying to prove their grandchildren insane when they made that will. Nobody but lunatics would marry people they'd never seen."

"But the will provides for a six months' courtship, Mr. Brown, I'm sorry to say. You might learn to love a person in less time and still retain your mental balance, you know, especially if she were pretty and an heiress to half your own fortune. I dare say that is what they were thinking about."

"Thinking? They weren't thinking of anything at all. They weren't capable. Why didn't they consider the possibility that things might turn out just as they have?"

"Possibly they did consider it, my boy. It looks to me as if they did not care a rap whether it went to their blood relatives or to the islanders. I fancy of the two they loved the islanders more. At any rate, they left a beautiful opening for the very complications which now conspire to give the natives their own, after all. It's necessary for both of you to be on the ground according to schedule. You must go to the island, wife or no wife, and there's not much time to be lost. Lady Deppingham won't let the grass grow under her feet if I know any thing about the needs of English nobility, and I'll bet my hat she's packing her trunks now for a long stay in Japan. You have farther to go than she, but you must get over there inside of sixty days. You can't tell what may happen in the next six months."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, it's possible that you may become a widower and she a widow."

"Good heaven, Judge Garrett! Impossible!" gasped Bobby Brown, clutching the arms of his chair.

"Nothing is impossible, my boy."

"Well, if that's what you're counting on you can count me out. I won't speculate on my wife's death."

"But, man, suppose that it did happen?" roared the judge brashly. "You should be prepared for the best—I mean the worst. Don't look like a sick dog. You go to the island at once. Take your wife along if you like. You'll find her ladyship there, and she'll need a woman to tell her troubles to. I don't think we'll have any trouble getting the British heirs to join in the suit to overthrow the will. The only point is this—the islanders must not have the advantage that your absence from Japan will give to them. Now, I'll—"

"But I don't like the suggestion that my wife will be obliged to die in order—"

"Please leave all the details to me, Mr. Brown. It may not be necessary for her to die. There are other alternatives in law. Give the lawyers a chance. All you have to do is to plant yourself on that island and stay there until we tell you to get off."

"Or the islanders push me off," lugubriously.

Young Mr. Brown went away at dusk, half reeling under the responsibility of existence, and eventually reached the side of the anxious young woman uptown. He bared the facts and awaited the wall of dismay.

"I think it will be perfectly jolly!" she cried instead and kissed him rapturously.

Over the opposite side of the Atlantic the excitement in certain circles was even more intense than that produced in Boston. Lord Deppingham needed the money, but he was a whole day in grasping the fact that his wife could not have it and him at the same time. The beautiful and fashionable Lady Deppingham, once little Agnes Ruthven, came as near to having hysteria as Englishwomen ever do, but she called in a lawyer instead of a doctor. For three days she neglected her social duties (and they were many), ignored her gallant admirers (and they were many) and hurried back and forth between home and chambers so vigorously that his lordship was seldom closer than a day behind in anything she did.

There was a great rattling of trunks, a jangling of keys, a thousand good-byes, a custom season, and the Deppinghams were racing away for the island of Japan, somewhere in the far south seas.

Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott.

July 4th, 1909.

(Copyright, 1909, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Paul's Second Missionary Journey.

—Antioch to Philippi. Acts xv:36 to xvi:15.

Golden Text—Come over into Macedonia and help us. Acts xvi:9.

Verses 36-38—Is it generally necessary to follow up any good work which we have commenced if we would make it a success?

Verses 37-38—Would it have been wiser if Barnabas had first consulted Paul in the matter of taking Mark?

Barnabas was a relative of Mark; are we as good judges of the fitness of our relatives for an office as we are of the fitness of others? Why?

Why is nepotism in government appointments, looked upon with suspicion?

Had Paul, probably, good reason for objecting to taking John and Mark with them? (See Acts xvi:13.)

If a man shows lack of courage, or fact, or faithfulness, in one position, does that disqualify him in any position, from getting another, or from success when in another position?

If both Paul and Barnabas had been duplicates of the man Jesus, would there have been this quarrel between them, and how would the matter likely have been settled? (This question must be answered by members of the club.)

When two Christians fall out, is one or both always to be blamed?

Verses 40-41—Did the dispute between these men work out for good, as it resulted in two missionary deputations instead of one?

Any process of reasoning can you conclude that God was back of this dispute, between these two goodly men, as to better work out his purposes?

Chap. xvi:13—Should ministers, and other Christians, be on the look-out for young men who are fitted for the ministry, the same as business men are for good salesmen?

When can you say for, or against Paul's recommendation, in view of the decision of the council at Jerusalem? (See Acts xvi:22.)

In matters of habit, or ceremony, or non-essentials, is it well for us to give way to the views of others, sinning our own preferences when we can accomplish good by so doing? For example, you may oppose wearing "picnics" in this country, with wisdom, and yet to refuse to wear one in China may be great folly.

Verses 45-46—What were the "decrees" of the elders which were at Jerusalem, and are these binding upon the church today? (See Acts xv:28-29.)

Is a church better with or without an elaborate creed?

What did Jesus teach which is not included in righteousness, and the constant vision of God?

Will a church sound "in the faith," always be a magnet to draw others to it?

Verses 6-8—Why did the Holy Spirit forbid them to preach in Asia and Bithynia, and would they have sinned had they done so?

When we are hindered providentially from doing certain good works, is that the Holy Spirit hindering us?

Verses 9-10—How many methods does God adopt in leading us?

Does God in every emergency give us some sure guidance as to what we ought to do?

Was this vision just as clear a call from God, as though he had spoken personally?

Verses 11-12—Does God direct the course of the Christian with absolute certainty, notwithstanding wind or sea?

Verses 13-14—What is one of the first things an earnest Christian looks out for, when he moves into a new community?

Are women generally in the majority as earnest Christians?

Verses 15-16—Are busy women generally more spiritual than those who have but little to do?

Should all girls be taught to earn their own living?

Is it easier for God to open the heart of an industrious person than that of an idler?

Verses 17-18—If a person is inhospitable, or stingy, is that a sure sign of ungodliness?

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures are heavily endured completely upon the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

If you never judge until you have heard both sides of any case you will be obliged to go through the rather painful process of completely revising your judgments far less frequently.

There is seldom a dispute of any kind in which each party does not feel that he is wholly in the right.

And there is almost never a dispute of any kind in which either party is wholly in the right.

"And both are wrong and both are right, And both are very impolite."

was what my mother always used to say when my sister and I came to her each highly indignant at the other, and each protesting that she was not at all to blame.

It is a very pertinent comment.

In the course of my newspaper work I once interviewed a woman in regard to a club election.

"We shall split up entirely if Mrs. A— is elected president," she said. "She is now treasurer of the society and she has continually used the money to give functions which the society did not sanction!"

I wrote my story and took it to the editor.

"See the other side," he said at once.

I interviewed one of Mrs. A's supporters.

"Mrs. A— is the woman for the place and will certainly be elected if Mrs. L— does not tell too many lies about her," he said. Mrs. L— was the woman I had previously seen. "Mrs. L—, you know, was put out of the treasuryship for getting accounts hopelessly mixed and Mrs. A— took her place and she has hated her ever since."

I rewrote my story.

A woman whom I know, recently went to live with her sister-in-law. That is usually a dangerous experiment.

It proved so this time. The married woman was the first to come to me with her troubles.

"There is so much work to do," she said, "and Lucile doesn't take any care at all. At first I thought she was going to but she doesn't any more. Night after night I go into the house and get dinner while she sits on the cool piazza and reads or sews until it is ready."

My friend looked very tired and I started to be highly indignant with Lucile and then I remembered that rewritten story.

The next day Lucile brought her embroidery over and before very long she, too, was pouring out her griefs.

"I thought Mary and I were going to be so happy together," she said. "But we're not at all. At first I tried to help about the work but I didn't seem to do anything right and it was so exasperating to have someone always saying, 'No, do it this way,' just as if I were a child. I've about given up trying to help now. I think she would rather do it herself than have me. And yet I'd like to do something besides sit on the piazza and read or sew."

"And both were wrong and both were right" echoed gently through my mind.

High Voltage Don't Kill.

While in the power house of the North Georgia Electric Company, at Buford, Ga., recently, Capt. G. W. Buford, a member of the city council, received 50,000 volts of electricity and still lives. He came in contact with a wire carrying 50,000 volts accidentally touching it with his left arm, and the current passed through his body. It melted the nails out of his shoes and badly mutilated his face where he wore gold rimmed glasses. Capt. Buford was almost stripped naked by the current. The physicians do not understand how he escaped instant death.

TRIPLE CURRENCY TRAY

Can Be Locked Into Either an Open or Closed Position.

Of interest to bank clerks or the cashiers of small businesses, is the currency tray designed by an Iowa man. This consists of a three-story combination tray that, when closed, resembles a small cabinet and when open presents three open drawers, which may be used either to keep banknotes in or to hold papers of various kinds. The device has a vertical rod running up through the corners of the three trays, which rest one above the other. The bottommost tray is so thin any, but the other two are furnished on the rod and swing backward and forward in opposite directions. The drawers are held in position when open by means of pins and when closed all three are locked with the same catch. In its open position the invention presents three trays of a number of compartments in each tray, one of which may be used for coins, another for banknotes and the third for checks.

A TOY FOUNTAIN

Water Spouts Up Continuously by Use of Siphon.

If the children of a generation ago were set down in a nursery of today they would doubtless be overcome with wonder. Indeed, even their parents would not understand the mechanism of many of the wonderful toys that amuse the youngsters of modern America. Among these elaborate playthings is something new in the way of a toy fountain designed by a Missouri man. This device consists of a toy house with a front yard. In the center of the yard, with the walk sweeping around it, is a fountain, which plays continuously through the use of the siphon principle. The tank in the house and the water which spouts from the fountain is caught in the basin of the latter and flows back into the tank, which has a lift pump at the bottom. The siphon, the principle of which is well known, and would have been understood by the children before mentioned, keeps replenishing the supply of water as fast as it flows its course.

Hypnotism in Sickness.

One of the greatest surgeons of the last century, an authority who still prevails, says that a large element of suggestion, therefore hypnotism, enters into the mind of every person who realizes or ever strongly believed he is sick, and this realization so acts upon the mind that it becomes open to ordinary suggestion or to the more professional forms of hypnotic suggestion.

A Miserable Man Made Happy.

Beau Nash on many occasions showed great kindness of heart, and it is told of him that on one occasion he asked a rich man for a donation of $5. The money was given, and the donor asked the Beau how it had been disposed of. Beau handed him an account signed with the signature of the recipient on which was written: "To making a miserable man happy—$5."—Home Notes.

American Grace Lines.

Aristotle says: "A land that sports unusually sprouts beauty in fruit, flowers and women must also produce a glorious fruitage of intellect." The girlish grace lines of the Venus of Phidias almost exactly conform to the lines of American demure and matrons, and these are preserved longer and more gracefully than in any other peoples—ancient or modern.

DULL SEASONS ARE DULL

mostly because merchants are willing that they should be.

The store that is constantly looking for increase in business will find many ways of keeping up the sale of its merchandise.

Under the counters, packed away in boxes, and on shelves there is lots of merchandise that is not selling as it should. The longer it remains in your store the less valuable it is both to you and the consumer.

If you have bought too much, or if it is not selling as you anticipated in buying, acknowledge your error in judgment and MOVE IT. Put a price on it that will bring people to your store. It is better to take a loss now than to let stock accumulate for years and be worth less each month that it remains.

Sales of this nature always stimulate buying in other departments.

This is good sound theory, but all the theory in the world is worthless if you don't ACT. This "dull Season" make up your mind to get busy. Make it a season of hustling, bright, snappy, energetic salesmanship. Do more than just wait for business to pick up in the fall. You can make business with the right kind of merchandise. If your stock is not in shape for brisk summer sales, it would be a good investment to put it in shape.

Turpentine.

Turpentine, in India, is derived from the chir, or long-leaf pine, which very much resembles the American long-leaf pine, from which the main supply of turpentine of the world is derived and which is rapidly disappearing.

This tree occurs in different parts of the Himalayas, at elevations of from 3,500 feet to 7,000 feet.
